Signs and Symptoms of Trauma

When you survive a trauma as a child or an adult you may experience:

- Difficulty dealing with your feelings (anger, stress, depression, anxiety)
- Trouble getting along with your partner and/or children
- Challenges at work; you may find it hard to be told what to do
- Trouble sleeping: bad dreams/insomnia
- Disturbing memories or 'flashbacks' of the traumatic event in your past
- Difficulty trusting other people
- Increased use or problems with alcohol or drugs

It is common to feel one or several of these symptoms after experiencing a trauma

Victim Services

Victim Services workers are here to offer you short-term emotional support and can give you information about reporting your abuse/assault to the police.

They can also help you prepare for court should you choose to pursue charges against your offender.

They may help you apply for Crime Victim Assistance funding for on-going counselling and refer you to other social service agencies you may need.

Individual Therapy

A therapist can meet with you on a one-to-one basis. They are trained and experienced in helping people who have experienced trauma, including childhood sexual abuse.

Sessions are usually weekly and may be funded by another provincial agency, another organization or you can pay for therapy.

We offer a sliding fee scale to make therapy more affordable and accessible to as many people as possible.

Groups

Groups are offered when there are enough people who are ready to start one.

A therapist will talk with you about what group therapy is like and whether you are ready to join a group.

One of the benefits of being in a group is sharing with others who have also experienced trauma.
